

PODCAST REVIEW

Death by Dying

Death by Dying is a dark comedy fiction podcast focusing on the obituary column for the small and charming town of Crestfall, Idaho.

The writer finds himself drawn into a series of strange and mysterious deaths, despite being only supposed to simply write the eulogies. Obituaries come to life as the writer turns detective and, in the first episode - Obituary 01 - the writer finds himself drawn into the murder of Wyatt Hudson, a farmer killed by gun shot.

He writes: "Husband, father and life of the proverbial party. Wyatt Hudson was a good man. He was generous, kindhearted, and danced like nobody was watching".

So, what happened?

Season 1 of Death by Dying is a five-part audio drama with each episode examining the shadowy death of a small-town resident.

To listen, search for Death by Dying on your podcast platform.

“Husband, father and life of the proverbial party. Wyatt Hudson was a good man. He was generous, kindhearted, and danced like nobody was watching.”

