

PODCAST REVIEW

Griefcast

Griefcast is a podcast that examines the human experience of grief and death but, with comedians as the guests, it's cheerier than it sounds.

In each episode, host Cariad Lloyd talks to a different guest about their experiences of death and grief. Together they discuss their views on the pain, loss and the feelings that can surprise us when someone dies and how humour can often be found in moments of darkness.

Previous guests include David Baddiel, actor Robert Webb and comedian

Aisling Bea, who talks about forgiving her father after he took his own life when she was a child.

In a more recent episode, Cariad talked to comedian Garrett Millerick about his wife's ectopic pregnancy, and how complex miscarriage can be to deal with.

Griefcast is an award-winning podcast balancing both the funny and the awful.
